~STUDY OUTLINES IMPACT OF “TOGETHER IN MINISTRY” AND OTHER COLLEGIAL COVENANT GROUPS

The Ministers Council was one of 63 groups, funded by The Lilly Endowment, that utilize the principles of covenantal collegial clergy groups. We call them “Together in Ministry” (TIM) groups. In April, 2010, Austin Presbyterian Seminary’s College of Pastoral Leaders published a study entitled, A Study of the Effects of Participation in SPE Pastoral Leader Peer Groups. The study measures the impact of these groups on the ministry of participants. Two surveys were used. One a survey of group members who have received Lilly grants and, secondly, the Faith Communities Today (FACT) survey. What difference does participation in a collegial covenant group make in the ministry of those who participate?

Those who participate are more likely to:

- Create a culture of involvement within their congregations including
 - Expected participation in new member’s classes
 - Lay participation in worship
 - Lay participation in communion
 - Participation in service to the church
 - The rotation of lay person in leadership roles
- Have an organized presence and involvement of youth including
 - A youth minister on staff
 - A youth program including conferences and camps
 - Congregational events planned and led by youth
 - Youth serving on congregational committees and boards
- More intentional involvement in the community including
 - A vision of the congregation as a change agent within the community
 - A strong emphasis on community service within the congregation
 - An expectation that the pastor will represent the congregation in the community
- Enjoy congregational support for continuing education including
 - Financial support for continuing education
 - Congregational requirements for continuing education
- Experience congregational growth when the ministerial leader has a sustained participation of more than 2 years with ministerial leaders who participate in the groups for more than 4 years having even a greater chance of experiencing congregational growth. ~HOW DID YOU LEARN ABOUT MONEY?

One pastor remembers hearing his mother say, every time they saw someone driving a nice car, "But are they happy?" We internalize any number of lines, from "money doesn't grow on trees" to "You can't take it with you." These messages about money affect how we lead in church life. Whatever the message, some grow up and follow the same way of dealing with money; others react and do the opposite. The daughter of a free-spending mother may still have her first dime, and carefully watch the church expenditures as well as her own. ~PRAYER FOR THE GULF COAST

Creator God,

Jesus told us that you love us so much that you even know the hairs of our head. And the Apostle Paul told us that even nature cries out for a lost good. We pray for your intervention in the Gulf of Mexico.

We cannot help but consider the mixing of technological genius (the capacity to drill the well) with sheer human ineptitude (the failure to change the batteries) that caused this open wound in Mother Earth's skin from which flows the black bile that threatens the lives of all who dwell in, on and near the Gulf waters. We are aware of the creatures of water, air, and earth whose lives are being taken or threatened by this disaster and we pray that you will spread grace upon all. Especially, we pray for your people whose homes and livelihood are being subjected to such high risk.

We pray for all who are charged with the responsibility for plugging the hole and ask that they will be quickly led to solutions. Or, if you should choose, put your own finger in that deep down hole and seal it up. We've heard about the parting of the seas and the calming of the storm so we dare to ask, plug this hole.

Lord God, we submit ourselves to your grace and wisdom as we pray in the name of Jesus,

Amen.
