February 2026 Newsletter

From the President

Dear Friends,

For Christmas, I received a wristwatch. I quickly realized that this wristwatch was too big and needed several links removed from the band to fit properly. This required a tiny screwdriver that I do not have.

A few weeks later, I learned that Royersford Baptist Church (ABCUSA) in Royersford, Pennsylvania was hosting a Repair Café. A Repair Café is an event where several folks who are skilled in a certain kind of repair come together as “coaches” and offer advice, assistance, knowledge, and equipment to repair items that the community is invited to bring to the café. These items might include electronics, bicycles, clothing, jewelry, instruments, furniture, art, toys, etc.

I brought my watch to the jeweler’s table and at first, she thought it would be a simple repair, but she also did not have a small enough screwdriver. She headed over to the bicycle repair table to see what they had and then the electronics table. Someone suggested she might try a pin from the fabrics and clothing table. Before we knew it, the watch had worked its way around the room. In the end, it was a pair of pliers from the instrument table that made the repair possible. The jeweler was able to remove the extra links and now the watch fits my wrist.

As the watch went around the room, conversations were growing and more and more people were connecting with each other offering advice and sharing tools, working together to mend the item. Over the course of the day, Royersford Baptist Church’s Repair Café saw 70 visitors. Several people remarked how valuable the event was and that they planned to be back at the next café with a whole basket full of items needing repairs, alternations, and mending.

We live in a world where there is always uncertainty, and it can often feel as if there are always things to be fixed, repaired, and mended. Perhaps this is part of our call as beloved children of God, to co-labor together, mending the frayed edges of our community, tending to each other’s needs, and investing in relationship with one another.

As Lent begins this month, I am reflecting on my experience at the Repair Café and wondering if maybe this is a good season to lean into the spiritual practice of mending and repair. How about you? Are there things in your life and community that could use a repair or a mend? Are there gifts and talents and skills you can lend to the process of healing and restoration in your community?

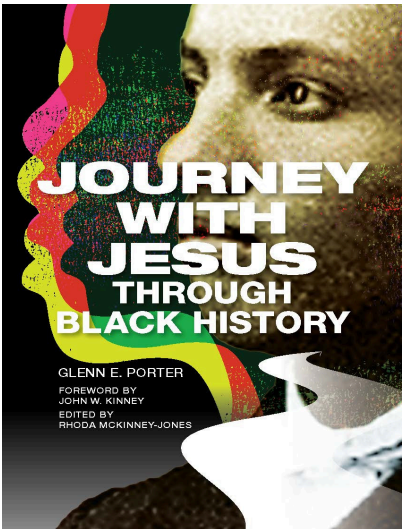

Blessing to you in this Lenten Season,
Rebecca

Honoring Black History Month: Remember, Learn, and Act

February is Black History Month, a time when we intentionally celebrate the profound contributions of African and African American people to our shared life and faith, while also confronting the truths of injustice and exclusion in our history. Black History Month began as a focused effort to bring attention to narratives often overlooked in American memory and today continues as a vital moment for education, reflection, and faithful action.

This month invites us into a deeper engagement with stories of courage, creativity, and resilience—and challenges us to listen and learn with humility. As ministers and people of faith, this is an opportunity to weave these histories into our worship, study, and everyday discipleship. May our attention to Black History Month deepen both our understanding of the past and our commitment to justice in the present.

A Lenten-Like Pilgrimage for Black History Month and Beyond

This February, consider joining a rich spiritual journey that bridges Black History Month and the Lenten season—not as separate observances, but as interconnected pathways of remembrance, truth-telling, and faith-shaped living. A Lenten-Like Pilgrimage for Black History Month and Beyond invites readers and faith communities to walk alongside Jesus through the Gospel of Luke while engaging the long, resilient story of Black life in America. Rooted in Scripture and history, this resource deepens our awareness of how faith and justice intersect and equips congregations, small groups, and families to explore both celebration and lament with honesty, reverence, and hope.

Mark this season with intentional reflection, courageous conversation, and intergenerational learning—and discover how this sacred pilgrimage can shape your worship and witness this month and beyond.

God of truth and justice, as we mark Black History Month, we give thanks for Black witnesses to faith, courage, and resilience. Strengthen us to remember honestly, to honor lives too often diminished, and to carry forward the work of justice in our time. Amen.

God of compassion, The news is heavy and many are hurting. Hold close those in fear or grief, and steady all who work for healing and peace. Root us in hope that leads to care for one another. Amen.

God of mercy, As we enter Lent, slow us down. Open us to reflection, repentance, and renewal, and guide us toward lives shaped by love and faithful action. Amen.
