

An Evening with Evelyn

March 19, 2026

5pm Pacific 7pm Central 8pm Eastern

Evelyn Underhill (1875-1941) was a scholar, mystic, and author who penned several works about prayer and meditation during her life in England during the rise of European fascism. She guided others toward a life of prayerful and intellectual mysticism, partnered with a practical pacifism. Amid the chaos growing around her, Underhill wrote of the need to live a life of prayer: “Like a pendulum, our consciousness moves perpetually—or should move if it is healthy—between God and neighbor, between this world and that.”

Join us for an evening of contemplative prayer guided by the words and ideas of this spiritual sage. As we find ourselves swinging between the chaos of the world around us, and the inward nature of the Lenten season, let us seek communion and centeredness with one another. We will discuss the guidance of Underhill for our life of prayer, read Scripture together, and spend time in meditative practice. And perhaps we will find ourselves blessed by her invitation: “It is those who have a deep and real inner life who are best able to deal with the irritating details of outer life.” May it be so.
